

Denise Ogawa is privileged to work for the CHOC Foundation raising needed funds for the Children's Hospital of Orange County, viewing this role as more of a vocation than a job. As a former early childhood educator, Denise's passion for the wellbeing of children applies to all aspects of childhood, including the importance of health, both physical and mental. In her role as Director of Planned Giving, she considers it one of the honors of her life to work with community members who want to benefit the health and well-being of children, now and far into the future. She can think of no other mission more valuable than investing in the future of children's health. Denise is an Orange County native with a wonderful husband, two grown children, a love for dogs and soccer. She can be found on the stage as a CHOC Follies cast member, which has quickly become her favorite way of volunteering for a cause near and dear to her heart.
